The M.E. Fox Center is the second new instructional building built at West Valley College in 35 years. It is prominently located at the new entrance of the campus.

This two-story, ten classroom, multidisciplinary building offers students and faculty the latest in instructional technology and distance learning capabilities. Lectures and presentations can be streamed live over the Internet, cable TV, video conferenced, or archived for future reference. Open study areas, designed for collaborative learning and teaching, are included in the design. A wireless network allows for internet access throughout the building and two adjacent outdoor plazas.

Construction was funded through state and local bond funds as well as individual contributions. The facility is named after Michael E. Fox, Sr., a long-time benefactor to the District.

Three locations to serve you:
